CHINAMAN.

The Rev. Frederic Poole, late of Central China, writes thus in the Philadelphia Methodist of the 3rd of March:-

There is perhaps no man on the face of the earth so capable of committing the grossest outrages, and vet succeed in escaping deserved punishment, as the natives of the Celestial Empire. The history of the foreign relations.

It was generally thought a year and a half ago

Foreign and rebellious element so prevalent, especially is Central China A series of disastrous riots, general destruclion of missionaries houses, and the horrible murder of a young missionary—a colleague of the writer was the signal for immediate and concerted action on the part of the Foreign powers. Gunbosts were dispatched to the scene f the disturbances and very soon every treaty port on the river Yangisze for seven bundred miles was under ganboat protection, For a time the Natives seemed awad by this naval demonstration. The indemnity and compensation demanded by the foreign powers was promptly for shooming. About $75,000 was paid y the Vicerow of the province in which the riots had occurred and essurance was given that foreigners hereafter would be full protected. This was accepted by the representatives of the foreign nations as an ample apology. The outrages and marders had been avenged, the monstary value of a missionary had been tixed, and just reparation had been rendered. So thought the wise potentates who are invested with the power to protect the interesta of their fallow countrymen in that inhospitable land. And yet it is a fact that to this day, the phnishment has been "fitted to the orime." The foreigner had been hoodwinked by the apparent penitence of the Chinese authorities and their readiness to pay a money indemnity. and this being accomplished, well those who know anything of the subtle and deceptive nature of the Chinaman, and the wonderful uses to which his especions sleeve may be put, have reason to believe that on that occasion it served to hide the self-satisfied and exultant, smile of the anti-Foreign Mandarin, as he thought how easily he had outwitted the hated "Foreign devil "without personally having to suffer; for whilst be with all that politeness and spavity, of which only a Chinaman is capable, depioring with apparent sincerity these distressing occurrendes, offers to pay a large sum of money as indemnify yet it is a well-known fact that he personally is not affected by it. Such an indemnity would be secured, by that system which is in vogue in all Oriental countries, and which is known to the foreign resident by the would be brought to bear by His Excellency. the Vicerty, upon his sub-officials, who would be made acquainted with their master's desires. They in their turn would exercise the same presover which they governed, and so this process of merciless "squeezing" would go on through all its stages until His Excellency, had secured the required amount, and was thing able to comply with the demand of the indigmant foreigner. Upon sinh a system—rotten to the core—does Chinese officialdom exist, and which is aptly desoribed in the allegorical language of the Chinese aphorism, that, the large fish eat the little fish. the little lish out the insects, and the insects eat the water plants and the mud." Events which have recently transpired in the Celestial Empire answer that question with an amphatic Not Strong anti-fereign feeling still erists, especially in Central China, where, only stity miles from where the writer lived, two voing Swedish missionaries have just recently baen cruelly murdered.

The question which now confronts all who are nterested in the future of missionery and com mercial enterprise in China is, "How much longer are the subjects of foreign nations to be order of H. M. the King, by H. R. Privoe the victims of book abominable atrovities in thing in direct violation of treaty provisions?" It is not sufficient to exact a more money indemnity when such disturbances occur, for the reason I have already suggested the real crimingle remain unfouched. Is it not time that hin Haws making descents on the region. Europe, and England particularly, shall say that many people from the left bank of the Mekong these deeds of violence must cease, and that used to come over to the right bank for the those who are responsible for these outrages sake of pasce, and that a great humber who must be summarily dealt with? Neither wis-

Until this is accomplished we may reasonably expect repetitions of the recent frightful coourrences and we shall hope in vain that that great Empire may speedily be opened to or cannot return to the Mekour because of any Chistianizing influences, and to all the blessings of a Christian civilization.
